ALERT!

MITE MADNESS!

FACT: Dust mites (bed mites) cause considerable health problems such as asthma, itchy watery eyes, sneezing, coughing and eczema just to name a few.

FACT: Synthetic pillows and comforters harbor more mites than goose down.

FACT: When we sleep we have our faces resting on a pillow and we are immersed in bed mite territory. Protect yourself by replacing pillows and comforters at least every 2-5 years.

WARNING: When was the last time you replaced your bedding? It MITE be time!

TIM UNDER THE GUN

The House Ethics Committee is reviewing allegations of campaign fundraising improprieties by Representative Tim Bishop. They think he used his influence to get a Sagaponack constituent a permit to shoot off fireworks. It was his son's bar mitzvah party. And, they say, Bishop's daughter/fundraiser asked the man for a campaign donation.

Bishop reportedly used campaign funds to pay the lawyer he hired to fight the fireworks accusations—a move some frown upon.

But isn't paying a good lawyer to fight the fireworks accusation legitimate? If Bishop clears his name, he gets more votes, he gets re-elected. Isn't that what campaign funds are supposed to be used for?

Who's behind this, anyway?

EXPLORE KNOX'S 5-DAY BOARDING OPTION

Located in central Suffolk County, easily accessible to the LIRR, and on a picturesque waterfront, Knox offers an affordable 5-day boarding option that allows area students to develop independence while spending weekends at home. Over the past two years, leading colleges and universities awarded our graduates over $2 million in scholarships and grants. We prepared them well with rigorous academics, including many AP and Honors classes, character building experiences, visual and performing arts, and competitive athletics, including on-campus equestrian and crew, football, lacrosse, wrestling, volleyball, soccer, tennis, baseball, and softball. A Knox education is also very affordable, including 5-day boarding tuition that is price competitive with NYC independent day schools.

For more information on our 5-day or 7-day boarding options, call 631.686.1600 ext. 414 or visit www.knoxschool.org.

South Fork residents were included on Forbes' 2013 list of top-earning musicians. Bridgehampton's Madonna took the top spot with $125 million; East Hampton's Jon Bon Jovi was #3 with $79 million; Coldplay, led by Amagansett's Chris Martin, landed at #5 with $64 million; and East Hampton's Sean "Diddy" Combs came in at #12 with $50 million.

South Fork regular Jay-Z unveiled his exclusive collection of high-end products for Barney's last week. Proceeds from the pricey line, which includes leather boxing shorts for $2,590, will benefit low-income youth.

Henry Kissinger and Hamptons regular Hillary Clinton were honored at the Queen Sofia Spanish Institute Gold Medal Gala at the Waldorf Astoria in New York City last week. In a speech to gala guests, Kissinger noted that "four former secretaries of state have gone on to become president"—a statement that many took as a nod to Clinton's potential run.

As Hamptonsite Barbara Walters prepares for retirement, ABC is airing a series of television specials in her honor. The first, an episode of 20/20 that includes Walters' fifth interview with President Barack Obama and First Lady Michelle Obama, aired Thanksgiving night.

East Hampton's Ina Garten, participated in Thanksgiving Live! on the Food Network last weekend. Along with celeb chefs Bobby Flay and Alton Brown, Garten fielded viewer questions while teaching some of her favorite holiday recipes.

Hamptons resident Billy Joel has added two shows at New York's Madison Square Garden early next year. In addition to the previously scheduled performance on Jan. 27, the Piano Man will play Feb. 3, March 21 and April 18. Tickets went on sale last weekend.

"Along with the New York Subway System, Hamptons Subway is the only underground transit system in the State of New York."

The H amptons Subway Newsletter

BY DAN RATTINER

Week of November 29–December 5, 2013
Riders this past week: 8,941
Rider miles this past week: 83,565

DOWN IN THE TUBE

An enormous number of celebrities were reported on Hamptons Subway this week. It's sort of a record and we are very proud of our volunteer spotters. Matthew Broderick was on the subway heading to Amagansett from East Hampton. Mickey Drexler was on the subway from Water Mill to Bridgehampton. Martha Stewart was seen getting on the westbound subway at the rarely used Georgica Stop. Ed Burns was seen getting on in Sag Harbor heading for East Hampton. Katie Couric was seen heading west from Montauk toward Amagansett. Billy Joel was seen in Sag Harbor on his way to Noyac for spaghetti with clam sauce. Howard Stern was seen heading westbound toward Hampton Bays from Southampton. One of our locals who uses the subway told us that if he knew there would be so many celebrities on the subway this week he'd have dressed up.

NOT TRUE

According to announcements made by famous government leaker Edward Snowden in Moscow, 1,206 American made nuclear bombs, which were supposed to have been destroyed in the disarmament agreement signed by the United States and the former Soviet Union in 1987, were not destroyed but were stockpiled in an underground storage room accessible from the subway tunnel between our Bridgehampton and Sag Harbor stops. And they are still there today. The U. S. Government denies this accusation. So does our commissioner, Bill Aspinall.

HEALTH FOR OUR EMPLOYEES

Hamptons Subway doesn't provide health insurance for its employees. Since its founding, it has had a fully staffed doctor's office right on the second floor of the main office on Ponquogue Avenue in Hampton Bays, available 24 hours a day. This week we shut it down with the impending arrival of Obamacare. We hope they get that straightened out soon. Meanwhile our employees are being urged to eat healthy, exercise, go up and down stairs carefully, look both ways before crossing streets and avoid close contact with those who have colds.

SUBWAY CAR TRAFFIC JAM

As always, it's possible to look down from Fort Hill at Montauk and see the Hamptons Subway yards where the trains go for maintenance at 2 a.m. every night. This past week, there were not 36 cars but 52. One of our assistant managers had mistakenly ordered an extra 16 cars from the Toronto Subway shipped here to handle the rush of subway traffic for folks coming out from New York City over the Thanksgiving Holiday. We only go from Montauk to Westhampton. We will not name this employee, but he's been fired, and the trains sent back to Canada. His argument that Canadians don't celebrate Thanksgiving as we do so didn't need the extra cards was duly noted.

COMMISSIONER ASPINALL'S MESSAGE

First I would like to thank all those folks who voted for me last week in the election for Commissioner, which I won again. Since I, as Commissioner, was the one who counted all the votes, I know who you people are and will remember you. As for those who voted for one of the other three candidates, I know who you are too. My philosophy has always been "live and let live." It's America, and I join in for the holiday spirit.

On another note, I want to thank all our subway customers. Not that there's another subway in the Hamptons, but even so, we always strive to be the very best Hamptons Subway ever. And we hope you and yours have a nice Thanksgiving holiday dinner. 🍗

IN THE BAG?

In the 19th century, during the whaling era, Sag Harbor was the most lawless part of the South Fork, and now it seems those times are back. What else are Sag Harborites to think when they spent the summer fending off burglars intent on taking their jewelry and their St. Pauli Girl beer? Now, in what could pass for a scene out of a dime-store crime novel, two unknown assailants, one male, one female, entered a high-end consignment shop on Sag Harbor's Main Street and robbed it at GUNPOINT, TYING UP the employee and shutting said employee in a storage closet. Then they stole numerous items from the store, known for its expensive Chanel and Hermès handbags, and left the premises, after which the employee was able to escape and call for help.

MCBISQUICK RISES

In an incident that could have profound implications in the ongoing civil dispute between Old Man McGumbus and his ex-wife Suzy McBisquick (as detailed in the Hamptons Police Blotter of November 22), police were called this week to the home of McBisquick to investigate the source of lewd and suggestive phone calls the 83-year-old McBisquick claimed to be receiving. It turned out that the calls, which featured heavy breathing, ribald remarks and detailed references to an incident involving McGumbus and McBisquick in the backseat of a Studebaker in 1947, were coming from none other than Old Man McGumbus himself. The WWII veteran, 103, was in fact soon discovered in his 1946 Studebaker Commander parked around the corner from McBisquick's house—a cell phone and a pair of binoculars in his lap. "I was just bird watchin', sonny," claimed McGumbus to the officer who found him, before breaking into a ragged version of the song "Bird Dog" while attempting to shake his hips. Whether McGumbus's lawyer plans to continue to press McGumbus's stalking charges against McBisquick remained unknown at press time. 🐦

County Might Change Configuration of Lanes for County Road 39

BY DAN RATTNER

In 2010, a decision was made by the County of Suffolk to widen the most easterly portion of County Road 39 from the North Sea Road intersection to where the road ends at Hampton Road further to the east. When the time came in 2012 to stripe all the lanes, it was secretly decided to build a passing lane down the middle and then two lanes eastbound, but just one lane westbound. That would mean many more cars would head into the eastern villages of the Hamptons, but fewer would be going out, since, in fact, there's no other direct way out. The work was completed in the spring of 2013.

The idea behind all this, of course, was to help the economy. By that time, we were all mired in the fourth year of the Great Recession, and many stores were struggling to make ends meet. Particularly in East Hampton and Amagansett that year, as many as half the stores in the downtowns closed in the wintertime. Many merchants moved out altogether, leaving FOR RENT signs placed in the windows by the landlords. These were desperate times and these were desperate measures.

It's fair to say that the summer of 2013 proved the effectiveness of this lane decision. East of Hampton Road, there were almost constant traffic jams as the motorists jockeyed to make their way through Water Mill and Bridgehampton. Most of the stores rallied and rebounded. Not only was the summer of 2013 as good a year for the merchants as any in recent memory, but in some cases merchants were absolutely overwhelmed with customers lined up out the front doors. Parking in the lots in East Hampton and Amagansett was very difficult. Montauk was booming. I recall several times driving into downtown East Hampton to do a little shopping, only to drive around, fail to find a place to park, and then drive back home to my house on Three Mile Harbor Road to try another day.

As a result of this overwhelming success, Suffolk County is this fall re-thinking the way this road will be striped for the upcoming year. They have held three meetings about this already and will soon decide whether to leave the two-lanes-in-and-one-lane-back-out situation for 2014, or change it so it's one lane in and two lanes back out.

The dramatic reversal of our fortunes in the summer of 2013 suggests that making the change could be like playing with fire. With two lanes heading back out, it could be the equivalent of having a plug pulled. The crowds of people who came to the eastern towns in the Hamptons in 2013 and who are still here, rattling around, unable to get out, might just rush out toward New York City in a thundering herd, emptying out the towns as quickly as the current situation got them jammed in.

"It's a very delicate business," said one county legislator. "One thought we had was to do it only as a half measure—that is to say, leaving things as they are for the first half of the summer, but then reversing things for the last half. Trouble is that this could upset people quite a bit. First of all, we'd have to shut down the road to re-stripe the lines in the middle of the summer for two days. Second of all, motorists might get confused at the sudden change and be driving one way or another in the wrong lane. We've pretty much rejected that option."

The legislature expects to hold at least two and possibly three more meetings through to the end of this calendar year and then make a decision on which way to go, so to speak, sometime in January.

This is a tough one. We wish County Legislator Jay Schneiderman and his cohorts all the best in making this difficult decision. 🐢

Reading Dan's Papers Literary Prize Essays in Southampton

BY DAN RATTINER

The first of what will be six monthly readings of select essays entered in the Dan's Papers $6,000 Literary Prize competition was held last Saturday evening in the living room of the Southampton Inn.

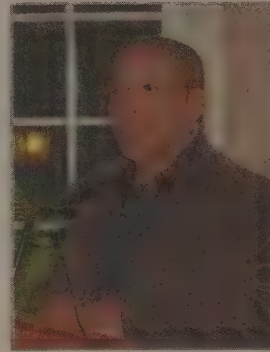

The setting could not have been more appropriate for literary readings. There was a roaring fire. Canapés were served and there was a bar off to one side. About 30 guests sat on couches and easy chairs in anticipation of hearing the essays read aloud by their authors from a lectern adjacent to the grand piano in the room. Classical music attended the readings prior to arrival of guests at 5 p.m. and as they left at 7 p.m. As this writer, who emceed the event, commented to those attending, this was the sort of gathering that might have been held in the 18th or 19th century to enjoy the work of an accomplished artist, followed by food and wine and conversation.

The literary competition has been held now for two summers, in 2012 and 2013, and will again begin in the spring of 2014. Writers contribute short works of nonfiction that reference the eastern end of Long Island in a meaningful way. About 400 people entered the event in the first year and a similar number entered in 2013.

This first reading was certainly the keystone event of all the upcoming readings. It featured the winner of the 2012 competition, James K. Phillips, as well as the 2013 winner, Susan Duff, reading their works.

Phillips, a Shinnecock Indian, read an expanded version of his winning essay, "Magic Shirts," that had the audience spellbound. He is a competitive dancer at Indian powwows around the country, and in the springtime, before the series of these large gatherings begin, the women of the Shinnecock tribe, create for him his native regalia from leather, cloth, ribbons and beads that they weave and sew by hand. Phillips, grateful for what they do, considers their work magical, and in appreciation wrote his essay describing exactly how the work was done. His oldest sister accompanied him to the reading, and at the cocktail party afterwards, my wife and I learned that her son, now in his 20s, is a bull rider at rodeos and keeps horses and steers out at the reservation here in Southampton to practice his craft.

Duff, who wrote the winning essay in 2013, "Moving Through Water," is a resident of Springs and wrote about her efforts to help her husband through a medical condition that threatened to result in his being unable to walk. She attributes his remarkable recovery to the swimming they came to enjoy during his rehabilitation, swimming that takes place on the narrow peninsula of Louse Point in Springs, where it's possible to swim in two bodies of water each day—Gardiner's Bay and Accabonac Harbor—just a few dozen yards from each other. Her husband, a handsome man with a distinguished black beard, accompanied her to the reading and sat there proudly near the lectern, smiling and enjoying as she read, attended by a cane nearby, which he seems to use only part of the time. After she read her essay, he stood to a round of applause.

The Dan's Papers $6,000 Literary Prize for Nonfiction awards a $5,000 first prize to the winner each year, as selected by a panel of judges.

Entries will be welcome for the 2014 prize at literaryprize.danspapers.com beginning March 1. Second and third place winners receive $500 each. Winners are announced at an event in late August at the John Drew Theater in East Hampton. Last year's keynote speaker was E.L. Doctorow; the keynote speaker in 2012 was Bob Caro.

Major funding for the Dan's Papers Literary Prize for Nonfiction in 2013 was provided by Barnes & Noble. Major sponsors of the event were Hampton Jitney, the Destination America cable channel, Bridgehampton National Bank (BNB), the Southampton Inn, Ben Krupinski Builders and Southampton BMW, Audi, Mini and Porsche.

The next event in the living room of the Southampton Inn is scheduled for January 18 at the same time, 5 to 7 p.m. Guests are welcome to come, free of charge.

If Your Sculpture Doesn't End Up in a Museum, Pay Them to Take It

BY DAN RATTINER

It's an established fact that the work of a poet or painter generally is worth more after they die. Especially if they die young. Just ask the English poets Byron, Keats or Shelley, who all died by the age of 36, or, more locally, Jackson Pollock, who died in a car accident in Springs when he was 44.

The eastern end of Long Island is filled with struggling artists and writers who chug along, hoping against hope that this will not be their fate. Or that it will. What is to happen to the paintings or sculpture they create after they are gone? The very thought of them being taken to the dump or given away at a yard sale can frighten someone enough to think about walking in front of a truck in their early 30s. Usually, however, the self-preservation instinct reins this all in.

Well, you can always give away what you've done to your children and friends, whether they like it or not.

I can think of two cases involving people out here, however, where those who didn't quite make it big have taken matters into their own hands.

Some people may recall a gift made to the town of East Hampton 10 or 15 years ago by the widow of a local sculptor, who asked only that a series of sculptures by the artist be displayed forever and ever on the property being donated. The sculptures would be there on display, and everybody is happy, except for other sculptors who did not have that happen to them.

The other happened just last week. The will of a wealthy 84-year-old woman, a sculptor of little note, who died in Manhattan in April, was read, and in it was found instructions as follows:

"The Trustee shall pay from the trust income and/or principal an amount up to TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS ($10,000) per work of Artistic Property given to a gallery, museum, school, and/or other cultural institution, on the condition that such institution agrees to display and exhibit such work of Artistic Property on a regular basis." Although the word gallery appears in the final will, it was amended later to eliminate the word gallery from the list.

The artistic work consisted of 70 large sculptures she had made during her career and were, at her death last April, in storage at a facility in Long Island City.

This startling offer was featured in articles in

"She wants the name Mary Lincoln Bonnell out there. It keeps her alive. It's her bid for immortality."

New York magazine, the New York Daily News and the New York Post. The woman is on her way.

The woman is Mary Lincoln Bonnell. She was married to Joseph Clark Jr., the wealthy son of Pennsylvania Senator Joseph Clark. Ms. Bonnell lived on Fourth Avenue and 12th Street in Manhattan and was a visitor to the Hamptons. Her sculptures were exhibited in the Elaine Benson Gallery in Bridgehampton and, in the late 1950s, at the famous Signa Gallery in East Hampton, during the few years it was in business. She was exhibited at Guild Hall in East Hampton one year, but none of the work sold. Nor did any other of her sculptures sell, as near as anybody can tell.

The couple never had any children. And when Mr. Clark died in 2001, Ms. Bonnell was just another little old lady (Continued on next page) living in Manhattan. As she aged, she became more housebound. There was a woman, Joan Horsford, who had been her caretaker for years. She doted on her cat, Amy. She was a friendly lady that people liked. But she died in a fire in the bedroom of her apartment on April 17.

The race is on. What constitutes "frequent basis?" What exactly is a "cultural institution?" And who decides exactly what "up to $10,000" is to be paid? Well that decision is overseen by the trustee of her estate, Herbert Nass. Obviously the Metropolitan Museum of Art is worth $10,000. But maybe the Bupkis Museum of Whirligigs and Sculpture in Podunk, Indiana is worth $50. It's up to him, I suppose.

"She wants the name Mary Lincoln Bonnell out there," Herbert Nass, told the Post. "It keeps her alive—it's her bid for immortality."

Photographs of the work have appeared in the media. The sculptures are, frankly, quite beautiful and delicate. They are made of bronze and other materials, look almost like works of nature, and there's a sort of soaring quality about them. I'd be out there selling them to museums in the area myself, but one of the first three already placed went to Guild Hall in East Hampton, according to the New York Post, so we've got our share. The other two went to NYU Law School ($2,000, if you ask me) and the Historic Hudson Valley Society (I'd give 50 cents.) There's 67 more to be placed.

If there's money left over after ten years have passed, it all goes to Ms. Bonnell's cousins in Nebraska.

Remember the name. Mary Lincoln Bonnell.

Another item in the news this week has involved a Jackson Pollock painting, possibly worth $50 million or maybe more if experts can agree he painted it, or maybe $50,000 if there is little agreement and it is only "attributed" to Jackson Pollock. I use the word agreement because the person who supposedly painted it and the person who says the painter personally gave it to her as a gift—so "now you have a Jackson Pollock"—are dead. Agreeing one way or another is the best anybody can do. At the present time, this painting is in consignment at Phillips auction house in Manhattan.

The person who claimed to have received the freshly painted Pollock from its maker is Ruth Kligman, a young woman who, at age 26, was Jackson Pollock's lover in his final year before he died in that car crash in 1956.

She was very public about her affair with Pollock after he died. There are photos of the two together. She was in the car crash with him. She later wrote a book about their love affair. She claims his wife, Lee Krasner, caught them having their affair. Kligman tried to get the painting—"Red, Black & Silver"—recognized as a Pollock, but the board that had been established by Krasner to authenticate her husband's works rejected it.

According to last Monday's New York Times, there is now a battle going on between Krasner's estate and Kligman's estate about whether this is really a Pollock.

But the news now is that a forensics expert hired by Kligman's estate says he has found good reason to believe it was made at Pollock's house in Springs. This man, Nicholas D.K. Petraco, a retired detective, has examined the painting, taken tiny samples of what has turned out to be a piece of the shoes Pollock died in, and has found, among other things, a white polar bear hair embedded in it. Is there a white polar bear at the Pollock-Krasner house? Their home is now a museum. And yes, there is. It is in the attic, but was used as a rug in the days the Pollocks (and Ms. Kligman, at the time) lived there.

Is it $50,000 or $50,000,000? We will soon see. Or not. 🐻

GENERAL TSO'S CHICKEN

The General

A History and Discussion of a Famous Chinese General's Chicken

BY DAN RATTINER

One of my favorite Chinese dishes is General Tso's Chicken. There is a sticky, sweet red sauce that is slathered over pieces of chicken that is delicious. It goes great over rice. Many people I know like General Tso's Chicken.

Sometimes when I eat a food named after a person, I try to imagine that person. I've eaten General Tso's Chicken for 40 years. I imagine in ancient times, more ancient than any western civilization times, General Tso arrives at his campfire after a battle and, when asked what he wants to eat, tells them "the usual," and so they make him his chicken.

I wonder whether he had invented this chicken dish. Perhaps when he was younger, just a colonel or before that a lieutenant, slashing his way through enemy forces, he was thinking about the campfire that he could retire to and, perhaps, this dish he'd cook up for the rest of his forces. He'd pass it around. Everyone's all hot and sweaty. There's hot tea.

It wasn't General Tso's Chicken then, and I don't even think it was Colonel Tso's Chicken. It was probably just called, by his friends, Tso's Chicken. And everyone happily slapped him on the back after they ate it. And then, when he became the general and he ruled over all the land, the news of his delicious chicken, General Tso's Chicken, spread far and wide. He didn't have to cook it then. He was the General. His soldiers would cook it for him. His soldiers didn't have much in those days, but they had his chicken. It was the least they could do.

Well, these are just the things I think about when I eat this chicken. Thank you, sir.

So then the other day, I did some research to find out just how close to the mark I was about this. Turns out, General Tso was a real person, though Tso was just a nickname. His real name was General Zuo Zongtang and he was born in 1812 and died in 1885.

What was going on in China during those days? Well, they were interesting times. The Qing Dynasty was in power from before he was born until well after he died. They did things big time in China even then. The Qings took over in 1644. They lasted until 1912.

It's likely that Tso fought the British in the First Opium War in 1840 and helped the Chinese win. He would have been 28 at the time. Probably just a lieutenant. He would surely have been promoted to general by 1850, when the Qings had to put down the Taipei Rebellion. He would have been 38 when it started. It went on for nearly 14 years, till the Taipings were squashed. So General Tso was 51 when it was over. I would think he surely must have been making his chicken by that time. It's the old story. To the victor goes the spoils. Thank you, General Tso. Cheers for the chicken and the General.

Sometimes when I eat a food named after a person, I try to imagine that person. I've eaten General Tso's Chicken for 40 years...

But now I also have learned that there are naysayers about this, that it is very possible that General Tso never made any chicken, had nothing to do with this chicken and hadn't even known about this chicken. Isn't it also true that Betsy Ross did not make that first flag? These things are hard to believe.

In recent years, people have gone to Hunan Province to track down the legend of General Tso's Chicken. I'm not kidding. They really did this. Check Wikipedia. They went to his hometown, Xiangyin, and they found that nobody eats General Tso's chicken, or even heard of it there. They went to the capital of Hunan, Changsha, and it is the same story. They even interviewed descendants of General Tso—1885, which is when he died, is not that long ago, after all—and not one of his descendants said they ever heard of General Tso's Chicken, much less that it has filtered down through the family as something the great General invented. And they certainly didn't eat it. (When having it cooked up and served (Cont'd on next page)

to them, they said it was too sweet.)

These investigators, however, continued along their way, eating General Tso's chicken as they went. Eventually people came up with two other stories about this chicken that I personally take as an absolute affront to the memory of this great general.

One story—and a woman named Eileen Yin-Fei Lo has written a cookbook that explains this—suggests that the name comes not from General Zuo Zongtang, but to a phrase in Mandarin that means “ancestral meeting hall.” In that language, a phrase “zongtang” refers to such a place. Now, ancestral meeting hall it may be, but just guess who came in to cook it! Ha!

Then there is this other story. Those believing this one say that General Tso's Chicken is not Chinese at all! They claim it was created in New York City in 1977 by a chef named Peng Jia. This is outrageous!

In this version, the proof is that there is no mention of General Tso's chicken in China, that people in China still don't eat General Tso's chicken, and that what they really prefer is bland ancestral meeting hall chicken.

The first credible mention of General Tso's chicken that they can find, anywhere, is in a New York Times article written in 1977 about this New York City restaurant chef Peng Jia.

Peng Jia was born and raised in mainland China. He apprenticed to a famous early 20th century chef in China named Cao Jingchen. Then he became the banquet chef for General Chiang Kai-shek, who along with his armies was fighting a war against the Communists in China after World War II. General Chiang Kai-shek was actually the leader of China going into World War II. He led the country when it fought Japan in the 1930s. He backpedaled his troops before the overwhelming forces of the Japanese in the late 1930s and early 1940s, when Japan was allied with Nazi Germany.

Years of history behind every bite

After the war ended and China emerged from Japanese clutches, Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist party continued its battle with the Communists, under Mao Zedong. They fought for four years, and the Red Army drove Chiang Kai-shek and his troops off the Chinese mainland to Taiwan (called Formosa by the West at the time). It was now a standoff. Chiang Kai-Shek owned the island. Mao owned Communist China. Not fair, if you ask me. But it remains so to this day, although Chiang and Mao died of old age afterwards and their followers took over.

No chicken was involved here. But then, in 1973, chef Peng Jia emigrated to New York City, and opened a restaurant in 1977.

And guess what? I find this hard to write. I write through my tears. He added sugar to a Chinese dish so non-Hunanese diners would like it, and named it after the famous 19th century General Tso.

I don't believe this for a minute. 🐔

'Tis the Season for East End Holiday Traditions

BY KELLY LAFFEY

With the holiday season upon us, the East End will soon be a blend of magic, wonder and cheer. Our villages and hamlets put on their holiday best, showing off before settling into their winter slumbers. Unique celebrations abound, providing ample opportunity for residents and visitors to create fantastical memories and yearly traditions.

One of the newest additions to the East End holiday lineup is East Hampton's Menorahcade on November 30, celebrating the village's third annual public menorah lighting. A parade of cars topped with giant menorahs will drive from Chabad Lubavitch of the Hamptons to the menorah lighting in Herrick Park.

Southampton has its own Parade of Lights each year, also falling on November 30 this season. A long line of decorated fire trucks begins at Windmill Lane and drives around the Village to Agawam Park for the annual Christmas tree lighting. A holiday party with Santa follows at the Southampton Cultural Center, where light refreshments are served.

Southampton is transformed into a veritable winter wonderland as the season progresses, with a parade of small trees decorating Main Street and Jobs Lane. Southampton Country Holiday presents its annual "It's a Wonderful Village" celebration from December 6-8. Enjoy a host of events throughout the village, including a three-day Christmas Marketplace at the Southampton Center. On December 7, children young and old can enjoy horse and buggy rides. Just up Hill Street, the annual windmill lighting at Stony Brook Southampton will occur on December 6.

Also on November 30 is the annual lighting of the Montauk Lighthouse. The holiday celebration will include caroling and a visit from Santa. Clearly, St. Nick enjoys the holiday traditions on our narrow stretch of island. The celebrations continue the next day with Christmas at the Lighthouse. East Enders are invited to enjoy pony rides, hot cider and a "Ho! Ho! Ho!" from Santa. A rain date for the lighting is scheduled for December 7; and a rain date for Christmas at the Lighthouse is December 8. The lights will grace New York's oldest lighthouse every night until New Year's Day.

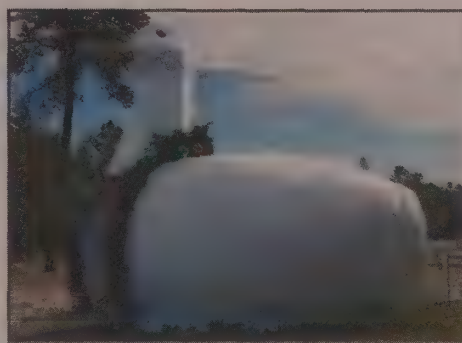

Montauk Point on January 1 sees another tradition—the annual pilgrimage of Koreans and Korean-Americans to watch the first sunrise of the New Year. Korean culture calls for the first sunrise to be seen from the most eastern point possible, and Koreans from the New York metro area traditionally make the pre-dawn trip to Montauk Point to greet the sun and anticipate all that the New Year holds.

On the North Fork, Greenport Village will host a tree lighting in Mitchell Park on November 29 at 5:30 p.m. Then, the Greenport Fire Department Christmas Parade will be on December 8 at 1 p.m. The weekend of December 15, Greenport will play host to another new tradition—Shellabration. This second annual event invites East Enders to keep it local by sampling and celebrating the freshly harvested Peconic Bay shellfish, paired with local wine.

On December 7, Westhampton holds its annual Holiday WinterFest, with events around the village. Later that evening, Jews and Christians celebrate the holidays together at the annual Christmas tree and menorah lighting on the Village Green.

East Hampton has its Santa Parade on December 7 this year, and Santa will greet children after the parade at the Hunting Inn. The 24th Annual Holiday Tour of Inns, B&Bs and Special Places follows on December 14. Local properties, dolled up for the holidays, will be open from noon until 4 p.m.

Time to light the Big Duck!

Sag Harbor also holds its annual windmill lighting on Long Wharf on December 7. Santa will visit the windmill the next day.

The annual Holiday Lighting of the Big Duck is held the first Wednesday after Thanksgiving each year, coincidentally the same day the of the nationally televised Rockefeller Center Christmas tree lighting.

Not that we're biased, but attending a duck lighting in person is a bit more quack-tastic and oh-so-Long Island. 🦆

Fun on the Fly This Holiday Season

BY MATTHEW APFEL

The Obamacare launch has everyone talking—and much of the dialogue involves four-letter words that rhyme with “duck” and “spit.” Politics has no place in this column, but from a sheer technology perspective, it’s pretty amazing that the government spent many months and many millions to build a website that crashes with 2,000 users. Did they use an old Atari Space Invader game for their server?

Anyway, I’m not here to dump on Obamacare. There are plenty of pundits to do that. I’m here to talk about an incredibly POSITIVE government decision that has citizens jumping in the aisles—literally.

This week the FAA finally relented and lifted its personal electronics ban on airplanes. Apparently, after much debate and testing, the government realized what most of us already suspected: the atmosphere is awash in a sea of microwaves and electronic airwaves, so a few more apps and videos don’t really make a difference to a sophisticated plane.

It only took 50 years!

In honor of this momentous occasion in our nation’s great and hallowed history, I present three great phone apps...about flying...that you can now enjoy while flying.

Flight Control

This is one of my all-time favorites. It checks all the boxes for a great game: free to install, simple to use, and highly addictive. In the game, you are looking down at different terrains showing landing strips and airports. For example, one level takes place on an aircraft carrier; another is set in the Australian outback. A series of planes and helicopters enter the screen from various angles. Some are faster, some slower. Your objective is to use your finger to trace a correct flight path, lining up the aircraft and guiding them to the appropriate location.

Seems simple enough, and it is, until more and more planes start crowding the airspace. The fun lies in sorting out patterns and reacting to changing aircraft and conditions. This was one of the first phone games I ever bought, and I still come back to it from time to time.

X-Plane Airliner

If Flight Control is the Cessna of airplane games, then X-Plane Airliner is the 747. Wow, is this a sophisticated app. It puts you inside the cockpit of almost every commercial airliner available, from the Boeing 737 up to the Airbus A380. Your mission is to successfully take off and land from multiple major airports, which is not easy to do. Once airborne, your phone becomes a virtual yoke; tilt up and down, left and right to maneuver the plane.

The beauty of this game lies in its details and complexity. The approach and takeoff from LaGuardia and JFK are pretty darn close to the real thing. There are airports from Seattle, Los Angeles, Chicago, Miami even Alaska. All of them feature different conditions and challenges.

Then there are the planes themselves. Your cockpit has every major function right there, on your phone. Throttle, brakes, flaps, compass and things I’ve never heard of. Even the dashboard and dials are realistic.

You can change views from cockpit to multiple exterior layouts, showing your plane flying upside down if you want. And yes, when you crash there’s a fairly spectacular fireball. Just make sure any nervous passengers aren’t looking over your shoulder.

This is not the easiest game to play, and it’s not cheap. I paid $5.99 the iPhone version and the iPad game is $9.99. But if you’ve got the urge to fly, it’s worth the price.

Skydiver Drop Zone

If you prefer to jump out of planes instead of fly them, there are several games to give you a decent skydiving experience. Drop Zone is my favorite. A plane circles above the ground, revealing different jump targets. Tap the phone to jump out of the plane, then tilt your phone to guide it toward the target.

The mechanics are slightly unsophisticated. But hey, it’s a game, and games are supposed to be fun. 🪂

Feast Your Eyes on Turkey Trots, Sporting News

BY KELLY LAFFEY

KEEP FIT

Thanksgiving is here, and it's hard to believe that just over a month ago, I comfortably jumped into the ocean. I think I got sick after that, but no regrets.

For those of you who are dreaming of summer 2014 and all the potential outdoor fun it represents, help is on the way in the form of that most quintessential of Hamptons summer pastimes—tennis.

Greg Bolitsky, professional tennis instructor, has joined the team at Sportime in Quogue, bringing high level, year-round lessons to the area with his Junior High Performance Tennis Program.

Dash before you dine!

"There's a misconception about how kids become players," says Bolitsky, who's the only USTA (United States Tennis Association) National Coach in a 50-mile radius. "It's not about where you go, but more about the programs being offered." All of his students are local kids who range in age from 8 years old to high school. In addition, Bolitsky will be offering a full range of tennis programs for kids of varying abilities that serve as feeder programs to the Junior High Performance Tennis Program.

Bolitsky came to the East End this September as the new Director of Tennis at Sportime. Originally from Toronto, Canada, Bolitsky was a nationally ranked junior player, and he began his foray into coaching in 1988 at the Port Washington Tennis Academy (where alumni include John McEnroe). He went on to become the USTA National travel coach, traveling both nationally and internationally, before taking a position as the head pro at Flushing Meadows and then coaching with the ISA International Tennis Academy.

In the summer, the area is "tennis central," says Bolitsky. But he wants to make the highest level of the sport more accessible to local kids. "If you want to be serious about tennis, this is where you come."

Thanksgiving Is Named the No. 1 Racing Holiday

Turkey trots are number one! In a recent article posted on RunnersWorld.com, Thanksgiving was named the most popular holiday for road racing. The previous frontrunner was July 4th.

Luckily, the East End has both covered. Montauk and Mattituck invite East Enders to strut their stuff before feasting. (But if you miss it, the Old Whalers 5K is in Sag Harbor on Saturday, November 30.) Southampton has a Firecracker Run over 4th of July weekend.

According to the study, 835,000 people participated in Turkey Trots in 2012, and the number is expected to increase to over 1 million this year. Will you be one of them?

Join in Some Holiday Fitness Challenges

The period between Thanksgiving and New Year's brings two holiday fitness challenges. The first, championed by Runner's World, is "The Streak." It begs the question: Can you run every day between Thanksgiving and January 1? The answer: Yes. Even slowly jogging a mile will take a max of a half hour. Carve out a little time each day, and you'll feel much better about grabbing that slice of pie.

The second is Lululemon's #NoHumbug challenge, which encourages people to "stay focused on what really matters (like love, laughter and eggnog)" throughout the holiday season. Each day brings a specific task to complete, but the general idea is to perform a random act of kindness. I think my coworkers will appreciate Dec. 4, which is apparently "Bring Treats to Work Day." Spread the love this holiday season. No humbugs allowed. 🍷

Moving on Up! The Hierarchy of Thanksgiving

BY SALLY FLYNN

Eleven-year-olds all over Shelter Island are wondering: Is this the big year? Is this the year when I get moved to the big table for Thanksgiving? Still, regardless of the obvious public elevation through adulthood bestowed by this gesture, there's something to be said for dining at the children's table. When you're at the children's table, especially when you are one of the table elders, you have so much power over those around you that you never fully appreciate it until you are gifted with the understanding that comes with age.

At any given moment there are three mothers circling the table like sharks. They grant every and any wish in a group effort to keep everyone quiet, non-violent and clean. There's no better place to settle an old score with a relative than under the children's table. From under the table, you can throw an elbow and crack a rib. The injured, crying child will be scooped up by a mother. Another child, like a seat-holder at the Oscars, will be quickly deposited in the empty chair to maintain the symmetry. Kicking, hitting, pinching, all manner of horrors happen under the little table while the occupants maintain innocent little faces. While the mothers fuss and fix and struggle to maintain the status quo at the children's table, another group of women in the living room are coaxing, begging, threatening and bribing the men to rise from their chairs and ambulate to the adult table. The men will walk slowly and discuss seat locations on their way into the dining room, completely upsetting the seat assignments already negotiated by the women who are corralling them to the big table.

As the men amble in, it's easy to see from the children's level whose fly is open, which is always a source of laughter for the children. The child who laughs the loudest is the one who gets grabbed by the arm. Not an ordinary grab, but a vice lock that stops all blood flow. Children look up in surprise that their sweet mother even has such a grip. And it is clear from her face that they had better stop laughing or she will snap that arm clean off.

You kind of know when your turn is coming. Someone at the big table will suggest your promotion, there will be a brief discussion, and suddenly the chairs will part and the path to a chair at the big table will appear. It's a moment that freezes in time. You turn and take one long last look at the children's table. You see all the cute decorations and the clean clothes on the lowest-ranking members of the family. Some look at you with envy, but the child who will now be the ranking member of the children's table regards your departure with a barely concealed glee. You can watch the corners of his mouth turn up as he begins to calculate, in his new stable of victims, who shall be the first to be stabbed in the leg with a fork or get a muffin in the face, as they sit there wearing homemade paper headbands with paper feathers.

As you approach the grown-up table, you feel your status increase. Obviously people have noticed the sophistication with which you use a fork, your adeptness with a napkin, and your ability to skillfully pass a bowl of peas without spilling any. You made it to the adult table. And even though you are starting at the bottom again, you can envision yourself moving up slowly through the years to the head of the adult table. And from that lofty station, you can command the whole family. 🐘

Celebrate Small Business Saturday on November 30

EAST END: East Enders are encouraged to shop small for the fourth annual Small Business Saturday on November 30. Small Business Saturday was started in 2010 by American Express, encouraging shoppers to support local businesses. This year, a number of seasonal festivities fall on November 30 as well, giving shoppers another reason to head downtown to take part in celebratory, community-minded events. Get additional details on holiday happenings at DansPapers.com.

Top 10 Reasons to Eat Piping Plover, Not Turkey, on Thanksgiving

10. It's no coincidence that "plovers" rhymes with "Stouffer's."

9. After spending the summer cordoned off from Hamptons beachgoers, they would welcome an invite to dinner.

8. Southampton billionaire Derwood Hodgegrass will recycle all plover feathers to create a line of luxurious coats.

7. Ben Franklin never proposed the piping plover as our national bird.

6. Small plates are all the rage.

5. Seventeen East End fireworks shows have already been cancelled for summer 2014.

4. They taste like chicken.

3. Old Man McGumbus is afraid that if turkeys become endangered, they'll stop producing Wild Turkey Bourbon.

2. No piping plover has ever been pardoned by a president. No president has every heard a contrite "Pardon me for taking up your entire beach" from a piping plover.

1. They're adorable. Don't you just want to eat them up?

The Sky's the Limit over Thanksgiving Weekend!

LONG ISLAND: Happy Thanksgiving—from space!

On Thanksgiving Day, November 28, Comet ISON will round the sun, and soon after it may be visible in the predawn sky. Closer to earth, however, Macy's famed Thanksgiving Day parade balloons may be grounded due to high winds. And, in other celestial news, a possible UFO was spotted in the Patchogue sky over the weekend.

ISON is called a sungrazing comet because of how close to the sun it will be when it passes through—just 730,000 miles away from the sun. "As Thanksgiving rapidly approaches, I am hoping many of you will take a moment to step outside and gaze up at the predawn sky," Southampton High School astronomy teacher Ryan Munkwitz says in a school bulletin. "[ISON] left the Oort cloud at least a million years ago and is expected to make many headlines during December after finally reaching the Sun."

Munkwitz says the comet is expected to have "an incredible tail" if it survives its journey past the sun and it will be visible during predawn in December through January. Though, he acknowledges, "If it does not survive, it may break apart and fail to meet all the hype."

"This is ISON's first trip around the Sun, so it is pristine with elements from the early Solar System," he continues. "Studying the gases that boil off will give us clues about the days when Earth was still being born..."

Hopefully, the comet won't be the only extraordinary object to grace our skies over the holiday. As of this writing, rumors are circulating that the balloons in the Macy's Thanksgiving Parade may be grounded due to forecast of winds between 15 and 20 mph, with gusts between 30 and 40 mph. Safety regulations set in 1998 ground balloons if winds are over 23 mph with gusts of 34 mph.

In other extraordinary space-age news, there was a possible UFO sighting over Long Island this past weekend. As reported on NBC New York, multiple witnesses reported seeing an object fall from the skies between Patchogue and Sayville on Monday. No evidence of a plane crash was reported. Police suspect that the phenomenon was a model rocket or a flare.

Matthew's Wish Seeks Toy Donations

HAMPTON BAYS: Matthew's Wish, a Hampton Bays-based charity formed in honor of Matthew McKinnon, is collecting toys, books and games to deliver to families and children that suffer from lifelong or terminal illnesses.

McKinnon was a long-term patient at Cohen's Children's Hospital in New Hyde Park for over nine years. "[A few days after Matthew passed] I brought up a conversation that Matthew and I had when he was a patient at the children's hospital," says Annemarie Allen, Matthew's mom. "He had said how he wanted to surprise all of the other kids by loading an 18-wheeler full of the 'cool toys' and delivering them to the hospital...knowing that is the only wish I could still grant for him, I knew I had to do it."

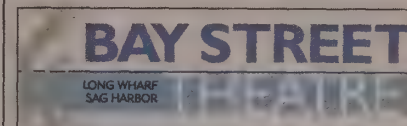

Since the toy drive started in 2011, the organization has donated to Cohen's as well as to the Ronald McDonald House of Long Island and several families through the Stony Brook Outreach Program.

"Last year, we were able to duplicate what we had done the year before, as well as to donate toys to communities that had been impacted by Hurricane Sandy,"

Donations of any new, unwrapped toys appropriate for infants to late teens are welcome. East End drop-off locations include Apple Bank in Sag Harbor; Gigi Kids in Hampton Bays; and Essential Chiropractic in Westhampton Beach. Visit the Matthew's Wish Facebook page for additional upisland drop-off locations.

"Matthew was always known in our family as 'Mr. Christmas,'" says Allen. "Seeing how his vision has helped so many people will continue to keep his memory alive."

Bay Street Theatre Announces New Summer Lineup

SAG HARBOR: The premature November chill has set the stage for a frozen East End winter and a hot summer at Bay Street Theatre. New Bay Street Artistic Director Scott Schwartz has already announced the start of his plans to reinvigorate the theater.

The summer 2014 Mainstage Season kicks off with the world premiere of Conviction, a modern drama by Carey Crim. The show, directed by Schwartz, details the life of Tom Hodges, a beloved teacher, husband, father and neighbor whose student accuses him of crossing the line. This new family drama digs beneath the surface of a happy suburban existence to explore the damage done when seeds of mistrust are planted, asking the question, "How can we live with conviction when some questions cannot be answered?"

The Maintage Season continues with an American classic, The Little Foxes. Lillian Hellman's treasured play tells the story of the Hubbard family in Alabama circa 1900. They scheme, connive and campaign for control of the family business and fortune. The play is a delicious portrait of siblings who will do anything to get what they want. The play is also a prescient exploration of the effect of greed on American society, and it rings as true today as it did when originally produced in 1939.

The third show of the Mainstage Season will be a musical that will be announced soon.

Review: Jerry and the Mermaid

BY LEE MEYER & BRENDAN J. O'REILLY

From the outside, Riverhead's Jerry & the Mermaid looks like a typical seaside bar/grill. We went inside fully expecting to have a decent cheeseburger and French fries, but, like the mythical mermaid, looks proved to be deceiving in the best way.

The decor is nautically themed, and a television behind the bar and above the dining room mean customers can catch the game no matter where they sit. During the warmer months, there's also seating on the heated patio. Hotel guests at the adjacent Hyatt can get takeout or delivery to their rooms. Owned by executive chef Jerry Dicecco, Jerry & the Mermaid is a storied North Fork gem, with delectable dishes for everyone.

Jerry & the Mermaid's extensive appetizer offerings are both sophisticated and varied. The yellowfin tuna tartare is not to be missed. The tartare is prepared with micro spinach from Satur Farms in Cutchogue, wasabi, aioli reduction and almonds, as well as sweet potato chips made in-house for scooping up the fresh and flavorful dish. Next, we tried The Mermaid Salad, with calamari and scungilli, olives, celery and red onion over mixed greens. Squeeze on some charred lemon to complete this sharp salad. On certain nights, as a special, the salad comes with Spanish octopus. When it comes to shellfish, every item on the menu is preceded by the word "local." The steamers are dug at Mt. Sinai and the muscles come from Shinnecock Bay. Local scallops had just come into season.

Clams casino, with mushroom, bacon, caramelized onions and thyme, makes a great start to any meal. Alternatively—or perhaps in addition, depending on appetite—the wild-caught oysters Rockefeller, with caramelized onion, chopped spinach, oyster liquor and béchamel, come four to a plate and are rich and saucy. Then there's the soup. According to Dicecco, the most popular soup on the menu is seafood bisque, which has an unparalleled creamy taste. But Dicecco's personal favorite is the New England clam chowder. It's clear why—every bite of potato and clam shares the flavor of the bacon.

Our final appetizer before the main course was a real treat. Jerry's Famous Buffalo Wings took Gold honors in the 2013 Dan's Best of the Best, North Fork. The wings, which are more dry than saucy, balance heat with BBQ sweetness.

There are entrees for seafood lovers and also a "Far From the Dock" selection. For a seafood dish, which is served with a choice of starch, vegetable fricassee and side salad, diners can't go wrong with the pignoli-crusted grouper. The crust gives the tender and mild fish a little texture and crunch and the beurre blanc lends a subtle buttery flavor. Rice pilaf with mushrooms and caramelized Bermuda onions on the side are a perfect pairing. For landlubbers, the black angus Gorgonzola ribeye with Jerry's own marinade can't be beat. The marinade draws out the natural flavor of the beef—which is unbelievable.

We were both stuffed after those two excellent entrees, but it's very hard to resist dessert. Jerry & the Mermaid's signature dessert is vanilla ice cream in a crepe with—the best part—hot fudge. It's like a deconstructed ice cream cone. For a real treat, get the apple tart. Because this takes some time to prepare, order 15 minutes ahead of finishing dinner.

Dicecco is Johnson & Wales-trained and has experience working in Italy. His father, the first "Jerry," founded the restaurant 20 years ago and has retired. It's clear that he left the place in good hands. We were curious about who the "Mermaid" in the restaurant's name was supposed to be. Dicecco smiled and explained that his late mother was the "original" mermaid, but that his newborn daughter now holds the title. 🐬

Upright Citizens Take Bay Street Nov. 30!

BY LEE MEYER

On Saturday, November 30, iconic comedy troupe The Upright Citizens Brigade (UCB) performs at Bay Street Theatre in Sag Harbor. One of the pioneering improv companies, UCB has given rise to such comedy luminaries as Amy Poehler and Ed Helms. Their touring group, UCBTourCo, makes its way around the country with a talented cast of comedians. Brandon Scott, a TourCo member who will be performing at Bay Street, offered some insight into the troupe and what the audience can expect.

"Almost [all of us] start by taking classes here at the UCB," Scott says. "You sort of work your way up through the levels, and then there's a certain level in which you're eligible to audition for the company." Students at the Upright Citizens Brigade Improvisational and Sketch Comedy Training Center start with "Improv 101" and work their way up through the carefully planned sequential curriculum. Rather than learning how to perform short form improvisation—the type of improv you'll find on Whose Line Is It Anyway?—students learn long form improv, which is more complex but also extremely fun for both the audience and the performers. Focusing on a structure called the "Harold," the comedy often begins with a suggestion or topic and spirals from there, creating a unique evening for the audience.

"More often than not, [audiences have] seen short form improv," Scott explains. "So what you see is, we'll take a suggestion or interview an audience member and ask them to be truthful and honest. We use that as inspiration to create full scenes. We're making it up off the top of our heads. It's sort of similar to a live play, but there are rules we follow to guide us." Scott also notes, "100% of the show is unique to the night we're performing it. You're going to see something unpredictable. Don't try to talk about the show to your friends, because it's never going to be quite the same."

Scott says that audiences often provide great ideas and topics, sometimes unwittingly. "We used to ask people to come [onstage] and say their worst day, which is usually funny, and sometimes people are very honest," Scott says. "We've also had people who share that they have lost someone or something like that, but we find ways to keep going. We've had those people come up to us afterward and say how fun it was." Of course, not every idea's a gem. "Sometimes you'll ask the audience for a suggestion and get 'poop' or 'fart,'" Scott laughs. "We're trained to turn it into something funny. As comedians we're supposed to take what we're getting and give it a unique voice."

The UCB's audience often varies. "My Saturday night show [in Manhattan] is a 10:30 p.m. show and is mostly 20-somethings or 30-somethings, so we get the typical 'good time' crowd," says Scott. "And then there's also people who have to be at least 70. I remember a time I looked into the audience and saw a 12-year-old!"

Scott, originally from Maryland, enjoys performing in the Hamptons. "I was out there a few years ago. I'm excited to come back. When I was out there last, I loved it. I'm originally from just north of Baltimore. I moved [to Manhattan] when I was 18 to study drama, and after doing that I got involved in the UCB." The TourCo has a large body of performers; Scott didn't perform with the troupe at Guild Hall over the summer, noting that the changing casts often makes for an interesting show. "When I started, I was a bit younger than a lot of the other people; now I tour with people I've studied with and with some people I've coached. It's a nice, healthy grab bag."

So, what's the one thing audiences should know about the show at Bay Street Theatre? Scott doesn't have to think long for an answer. "They're going to get a show that has never been done before and will never be done again. It's just for them. That's the main thing. It's UCB, so everything goes!"

This Just in: Everything Old—New!

BY LEE MEYER

November is sweeps month on TV, which means every show pulls out all the stops to bring the drama, surprises and fun. Fans of Revenge got a great sweeps surprise during the primetime soap's November 17 episode, when Lydia, who was presumed dead in a plane crash at the end of the first season finale, returned to get her own revenge on the Hamptonsites who wronged her. Amber Valletta gives a wonderfully campy performance as the scheming seductress and I can't wait to see what's in store for her character (who appears to have an infinite amount of lives). The episode also featured the "East Montauk Farmer's Market," complete with the "Shelton Dairy Farm." Let me know if you've heard of either of those.

Hamptons resident Alec Baldwin's November felt like a real-life sweeps event. After he testified against his alleged stalker, Genevieve Sabourin, the Canadian actress was found guilty and sentenced to seven months in prison. But the drama didn't end there for Baldwin, who was suspended from his MSNBC series Up Late With Alec Baldwin after supposedly hurling anti-gay slurs at paparazzi when they wouldn't leave his family alone. Though Baldwin insisted he didn't mean his words as hate speech, he apologized to anyone he offended and reasserted his support of the gay community, despite criticism from gay media advocacy group GLAAD. It was later confirmed by MSNBC and a spokesman for Baldwin that Up Late won't return. Here's hoping Baldwin and his family can have a peaceful holiday with baby Carmen.

Best second date ever

After months of speculation, production company Prospect Park has confirmed that All My Children, the canceled ABC soap that had been revived for Hulu earlier this year, will not be returning. The news will no doubt disappoint fans of Long Island fave Susan Lucci, who didn't appear in the show's Hulu run but hadn't ruled out a future return to her legendary role of Erica Kane. Lucci can currently be seen on Lifetime's Devious Maids, which was renewed for a second season, to debut in 2014. Interestingly, Devious Maids had another All My Children/Hamptons connection in Paula Garcés, who played ill-fated maid Flora. Garcés appeared in the All My Children reboot as FBI agent Lea Marquez. Garcés, who recently announced that she's pregnant, also co-starred in The Maid's Room, a Hamptons-set thriller that was featured in October's Hamptons International Film Festival.

East End regular Natalie Portman reprised her role as beautiful science whiz Jane Foster in Thor: The Dark World, which surpassed the original Thor's box office sales within its first two weeks. The film reunites Portman with co-star Chris Hemsworth as the titular demigod in a high fantasy adventure to stop worlds from colliding and causing a universal apocalypse. Don't worry, though; it's pure popcorn cinema and makes for a great date movie. Thor: The Dark World also stars scene-stealer Tom Hiddleston as Thor's black sheep brother Loki, Sir Anthony Hopkins as their father Odin and Rene Russo as their mother, Friga, who gets much more to do than in the first film, where her role was little more than a cameo.

Hamptonite Matt Lauer spoke with Toronto Mayor Rob Ford last week about the mayor's admitted use of crack cocaine while on a drunken bender. Ford appeared to be quite defensive toward Lauer, who questioned why voters would still want him in office. Lauer was also sporting his still-developing beard, which he pledged to grow as part of "Movember," a yearly movement to help raise awareness for men's health issues.

In an exciting bit of theater news, North Fork teen Ella Watts-Gorman has been cast as Louisa in NBC's upcoming live telecast of The Sound of Music. The television event, which airs on December 5 at 8 p.m., features an all-star TV/Broadway cast, with country pop star Carrie Underwood as Maria von Trapp, Stephen Moyer as Captain von Trapp, Audra McDonald as Mother Abbess, Laura Benanti as Elsa Schrader and Christian Borle as Max Detweiler. For the uninitiated, The Sound of Music made an icon out of Sag Harbor's Julie Andrews.

Finally, news anchor and Hamptonite Katie Couric will be leaving ABC in 2014 to join Yahoo News as a global anchor. Couric is expected to become "the face" of the Yahoo News network. But she will continue to host her syndicated talk show, so you can still look forward to her after General Hospital.

That's all for this month, folks. As the von Trapp family singers would say, "so long, farewell"—but I'll see you in December! 🍷

Movies...

OLDBOY

Josh Brolin, Elizabeth Olsen and Samuel L. Jackson star in Oldboy, directed by Spike Lee. In a change of pace for Lee, this film is in the mold of an action-thriller, with the characteristic themes of injustice and eventual revenge. Brolin plays an advertising executive who's kidnapped in 1993 and held in solitary confinement for 20 years before being released. Both his kidnapping and release seem to lack any rhyme or reason. But now, as a free man, he's determined to get answers. The movie is based on a Japanese comic, or manga, but differs in several important aspects from its source: fans of the comic will surely feel betrayed by the changes—the rest of us won't know the difference.

FROZEN

Thanksgiving weekend often means a new animated film from Disney, and Frozen is this year's model. For once not a Pixar co-production, Frozen has more of the look of the old-fashioned hand-drawn cartoons of Disney's classic films—plus, it's a musical—making it perhaps a return to the Disney renaissance of the '80s and '90s. The film tells the story of a young woman, Elsa who has the unfortunate power of turning things around her to ice, and who, finding herself ostracized, decides to plunge the kingdom of Arendelle into eternal winter. Her sister, Anna, decides to set off on a mission to find Elsa and convince her to unfreeze Arendelle. She's accompanied by rugged mountain man Kristoff who commands a sleigh driven by a reindeer named Sven—details that suggest the whole thing is taking place in Norway. Frozen is being released in regular as well as 3D versions.

HOMEFRONT

Hollywood likes to portray quaint small-town USA as idyllic—clean, God-fearing, the way life ought to be—while painting the cities as crime-ridden and festering. So it comes as a breath of fresh air when a more realistic view makes it onto the screen. In Homefront, ex-DEA agent Phil Broker (Jason Statham) moves with his young daughter (Izabela Vidovic) to a picturesque little town to try to rebuild after the death of his wife. A nice house, lots of

'Tis the Season For Local Holiday Shopping

BY STEPHANIE DE TROY

These days, as soon as Thanksgiving is over, the Christmas lights appear. The shops are filled with red and green, a sprinkling of Hanukkah blue, and enticing scents and sounds. It can be altogether overwhelming if you're in the city. Here on the East End, though, we're especially fortunate to have a holiday season steeped in tradition; just as one might expect to have found it 50 years ago. The lights on Main Street in Southampton bring cheer to the now-dark days; and as soon as they're up I make it a habit to drive through them on my way home from work. It's nice during this busy season to try to take a little time for yourself and to find gifts for your loved ones in places that bring you some joy, too. Here are a few ideas to get you started on your holiday shopping adventures.

Altman's Needle & Fiber Arts is hosting a trunk show of its exclusive collection of Evy Leonard's handmade crochet blankets on Saturday and Sunday, December 7th and 8th. It's the perfect excuse to head to the adorable Love Lane in Mattituck and have lunch! Each blanket is designed with a color theme drawn from her vast collection of hand dyed solid and variegated sock-weight wool yarns, making each piece soft to the touch and intricate in detail and texture. Meet the artist and enjoy refreshments on Sunday, Dec. 8 from 11 a.m.-1 p.m. Altman's Needle & Fiber Arts is located at 195 Love Lane, Mattituck. Call 631-298-7181 or visit atlmansneedlearts.com.

The "By Hand" Artisans will hold their annual holiday gift show on Saturday and Sunday, December 14th & 15th, from 10 a.m.-6 p.m. at Ashawagh Hall. Find handweaves, woodcarvings, porcelain face jewelry, hand-knits, handcrafted wooden toys, pearls, yarns, skincare, pottery, soaps and much more. Ashawagh Hall is located at 780 Springs Fireplace Road in East Hampton. Admission is free and refreshments will be served. For more info, call 631-987-6312.

After all that, here's treat for you: Karin Herzog Essential Mask. After a brisk winter walk or jog, nothing is quite as nice as rebalancing your skin with a facemask. Dr. Paul Herzog—inventor of an artificial respiration system used worldwide and doctor honoris causa of the Nobel Institute—is the first scientist to successfully stabilize active oxygen in an emulsion. Together with his assistant and wife Karin, Dr. Herzog developed the skincare line that is based on the discovery of a combination of neutralized vitamin A and stabilized oxygen. The results are astounding. I tried the Essential Mask and my sensitive skin loved it. After ten minutes, followed by a quick rinse, my skin had a youthful glow and felt supple and smooth. Visit karinherzog.com for your wintertime essential facial mask. Your skin will thank you and you'll be looking fab for all those holiday soirées!

Are your nails looking a mess? In between manicures, you can keep your nails looking top-notch with a miracle that comes in a little bottle called probelle. I've always had weak nails. Just peeling a sticker off a piece of fruit can cause my nails to flake. This afternoon, I tried one coat of probelle and already my nails are harder and stronger. Formula 1 gets you started and Formula 2 is for your ongoing healthy nail maintenance. A great stocking stuffer idea! Visit cosmeticslk.com for this and lots of more fun stuff.

NEW KID ON THE BLOCK

The Glass Greenhouse & Farm Market has just opened! Featuring artisan bakery, specialty cheeses, organic fruits and vegetables. With nearly five acres of greenhouse growing area, the fresh plant products are grown on location, from seed and from imported cuttings. You can pick your own plants and flowers in the warmth of the greenhouse. Located at 1350 Rte 25 Jamesport, the Glass Greenhouse & Farm Market is open seven days a week. Call 631-779-3410 or visit the glassgreenhouse.com.

AgeFocus: Always on the Cutting Edge

BY SHARON FEJEREISEN

AgeFocus is a leading medical practice located in Southampton, specializing in Age Management Medicine. We spoke with Anthony F. Ferrara, B.S., ACSM-CPT, IFA-CFI, Senior Instructor, and Sports Nutritionist Certified, to find out more about the cutting edge treatments available.

Can you tell us about some of your newest treatments?

We opened a MedSpa in July so several of those treatments are new. We offer a full menu of massages, facials and body wraps using marine-based products, chemical peels, cosmetic injections, body contouring and skin rejuvenation. Clients also love the Hydrafacial, which resurfaces and hydrates your skin giving results in less than a half-hour with no downtime.

What are your most popular treatments?

One of our most popular treatments is Venus Freeze, a non-invasive procedure that helps with skin tightening by stimulating collagen on a deep level and with cellulite reduction.

What is the demographic for your clients?

Our clients range in age from teenagers to seniors and come from all over.

What do you offer in terms of weight loss and how is it different from what's out here?

AgeFocus' medically supervised weight loss programs are based on an extensive initial evaluation using state-of-the-art diagnostic equipment that allows us to precisely understand your body and match it to your weight loss needs. We use proven research to help create an individualized plan to achieve your goal. The programs help you lose body fat while preserving your lean muscle mass within a specific time frame. Our programs differ from others in what we offer above, as well as before/after measurements, pictures and DEXA body composition scans (one of the more accurate methods of measuring body composition available), RMR (Resting Metabolic Rate) test, physician, exercise physiologist and nutritionist evaluations and treatment recommendations, FDA-approved medical foods, medical-grade supplementation and weekly follow-ups. This all combines to form the most successful weight loss programs around.

Can you tell us about Dr. Juan Gargiulo?

He's the medical director here and devotes his practice to preventative medicine, hormone replacement therapy and customized nutrition and fitness programs. A bio-identical hormone expert, he has a primary interest in hormone therapy, fitness and nutrition to keep the body in optimal shape. He also has the unique ability to discuss the AgeFocus Age Management program from his own experience as a patient. Dr. Gargiulo exercises daily, follows a prudent low stress/nontoxic lifestyle, eats a healthy low-glycemic diet with appropriate supplementation and has reaped the benefits of hormone replacement therapy for years. He has been named Top Doctor in both the New York Metro Area and Long Island and he's board certified in both anesthesiology and pain management. He oversees the programs at AgeFocus and MedSpa at AgeFocus and performs several of the cosmetic treatments himself.

What does your detox program entail?

Our medical staff has designed a detox program to enhance mind, body and overall health by removing toxins and poisons that may be harmful to your well-being. Our team of specialists will determine your level of toxicity and pollution exposure through medical testing and provide you with a customized detox plan consisting of supplements and a clean diet to enhance the process without exposing your body to additional poisons. Afterward, your mind will feel cleared, you'll experience energy, improved digestion and sleep patterns, and you will have restored optimal health to your body.

What do you offer in terms of anti-aging?

We offer a variety of anti-aging treatments such as a non-ablative fractional laser to resurface skin and promote collagen, Venus Freeze to aid in skin tightening, and our Ocean & Oxygen Signature Facial for cell renewal. Other great age defying treatments include Hydrafacial, photo rejuvenation and chemical peels. Along with our treatments we sell marine-based products for a good skincare regime, and medical-grade supplements to help you "Look, Feel, & Act Younger."

What should someone who's unsure of what treatment is best do?

They can come in for a general consultation. If they are unsure of what treatment or program is best for them, they can call the office directly at 631-243-3628 to make an appointment for a free evaluation. 🐾

Why Not Try Leaving the Leaves?

BY JEANELLE MYERS

My sister said this morning that she has about four feet of leaves on her yard. I'm sure it seems like four feet. I suggested that she remove them with her bag-equipped lawn mower. The shredded leaves can then be put into the shrub, flower and vegetable beds. The worms will like them and act as a weed barrier. I told her to leave them in place in the spring, take a pH test of the soil and apply the appropriate amount of lime. Planting in the vegetable garden can be done right through the leaves and they will continue to act as a soil feeder and mulch. In my opinion, there's no better mulch unless green grass clippings comprise about one third the volume of the mass. Shredded leaves can also be kept to be added to the compost pile during the winter.

I raked my leaves yesterday and put them—unshredded—into my beds and on the paths between the beds. I put down about eight inches of leaves. They become about two inches in the spring. Of course, today the leaves remaining on the trees are falling like snow!

I also let my gas powered machines run out of gas this week before putting them into the shed. I put my tools away and had the carwash clean the truck. The job was just too overwhelming for one person (me)!

I put my non winter-proof pots on skids and covered them with tarps. I set the winter-proof ones that remain in the garden on feet. I covered the fountain with clear plastic.

I'm ready for winter!

However, I would like to have a root cellar to store food for winter. My aunts in Nebraska all had root cellars. They were caves in the ground and their roofs made big bumps in the yard. They were wondrous places with shelves of canned vegetables, fruits and jams and jellies. Carrots and various squashes were stored on shelves. There were wooden boxes of white potatoes, sweet potatoes, onions, and apples. The cellars were cool in summer and above freezing in winter. To be sent down there in winter was a treat for the young cousins from town. They were also used as retreats when tornadoes were threatening.

When I lived in a loft in the city, I made a winter storage place. I put an insulated cupboard-type box next to the door and drilled small holes in the door. It worked very well for the vegetables I had bought at the Union Square Farmers Market. I even stored Brussels sprouts in there!

I also canned tomato sauce and made jams and jellies using produce from the farmers market. And, unlike the aunts from my childhood, I had a deep freeze. I packed it with produce from the farmers market. I made a curious sight on Saturday on my bicycle with its three baskets and the basket on my back, but we had great local produce... as local as possible in New York City.

Here, in the land of many farm stands and much locally grown produce, keeping some food for the winter is an easier task than it was for my aunts or for me in the city. Canning and jam making are becoming more common.

Freezing food is very easy and with a deep freeze, one can load up. There are amazing varieties of squashes that can be stored in a dark place in a cool garage. Locally grown potatoes (the best in the US!), carrots, beets and any other root vegetables can be stored in this way.

My aunts checked the vegetables in the root cellars periodically to make sure nothing was rotting. You need to do this with the produce in the garage, too.

My garage stash also includes the bulbs and tubers I'm storing for the winter... tuber roses, cannas, gladiolas and dahlias.

I see the chipmunks scurrying around with their cheeks bulging and squirrels running madly with acorn in their mouths. The winter bird varieties are at the feeders. I have cleaned all the clients' gardens and am ready to tuck into the studio!

Restaurant Review: Race Lane

BY STACY DERMONT

Ah, Race Lane. A reliably good and welcoming restaurant in East Hampton. How is it that I've stayed away for so long? I haven't eaten here since Executive Chef Nimesh Maharjan took over. Will his cooking be as good as the food memories I associate with Race Lane? Short answer: "Oh, yeah."

The longer answer started with a Race Lane Punch, which is a house mocktail, for me. It was pretty pink in a tall glass with a slice of Granny Smith apple on top and nicely sweet. Though I was tempted to indulge in a Moonshine Mojito of Dutch's sugar wash moonshine, muddled lime and mint and simple syrup—my husband and I were off to a movie after dinner—so I was steering clear of Race Lane's extensive wine list and bar offerings. Local beverages include Wölffer and Channing Daughters wines by the glass and Montauk Brewing Company's Driftwood Ale. Husband ordered a martini made with Hendrick's gin to start. He found it "ice cold," and was clearly pleased.

Of course I ordered the Pumpkin Coconut Bisque. With its touches of toasted hazelnuts, fried parsley and smooth coconut foam, it was an excellent savory, textural mix.

Onto an amazing octopus dish with tomato confit, Kalamata olives, parsley and pickled red chili. It's easy to see why this is one of Race Lane's top sellers. Cut into delicate rounds, it was the best octopus I've ever eaten. Tender and featuring a lusciousness comparable to puttanesca. Husband went with the Wölffer white blend to compliment this dish.

The last time I reviewed Race Lane a reader emailed me "before" and "after" photos of his favorite dish there—steak. He recommended it highly—so I ordered the steak special this time. Perfectly medium rare, this is steak exactly as it should be, with a fine montepulciano sauce and a tasty topping of Good Water Farms' microgreens. Husband was more than happy to "help" with this cut.

Husband indulged in some House Rolled Gnocchi with lobster, morels, peas and tarragon—served HOT. So soft and subtly delish! He exclaimed upon his first bite, "Oh! Oh it's good! Wow."

He was tempted by the Braised Short Ribs but moved onto Sea Scallops with parsnip purée, chanterelle mushrooms and tomato served in an inventive manner over hearts of palm pylons. The scallops were "like butta," he said. The purée was pure parsnip flavor, a lively taste of the fall season. (You know that I snagged a bite.)

Husband considered indulging in some New York State whiskey or a bit of Chartreuse but instead enjoyed a goblet of the sweet Wölffer Estate Diosa to close this magnificent meal—while I indulged in a very tasty Pistachio Semifreddo with whipped cream, hazelnut crumbs and berries...

Baby, it's cozy inside!

At $33, I might well return soon for Race Lane's three-course prix fixe. While we were there, the crowd was all-ages, couples and families. It's a family sort of restaurant—in great Hamptons style. Overseen by the friendly and efficient Rowaida and Jay Plumeri, it's a great place to de-stress. 🐾

With Leftovers: Turkey Day is Here to Stay

BY SILVIA LEHRER

After the feast, are you comforted by visions of delicious leftovers? Or do you deny its presence a second day. Love it or loathe it, Thanksgiving leftovers are here to stay, and I for one love it.

As you ponder what to do with turkey leftovers and the desire to eat a bit lighter, consider a turkey sandwich on a croissant with crinkly spinach leaves, dressed with a mustardy mayonnaise. To further avoid the heat of the kitchen on post Thanksgiving Day, a take on a Thai noodle salad incorporates leftover turkey, cooked and cooled noodles and sweet bell pepper in an aromatic peanut sauce with a bit of spice. To temper the heat of the peanut dressing, consider the cooling cranberry sauce sitting in one of those little containers in your refrigerator.

Don't you just love it when clearing out the fridge results in new and tasty ways to enjoy leftovers?

TURKEY AND SPINACH ON CROISSANT

Turkey leftovers are a blessing when paired with compatible ingredients.

Makes 6 to 8 sandwiches

6 to 8 croissants

1 1/2 pound thin slices of fresh roast turkey

2 cups fresh spinach leaves, washed and dried well

Mayonnaise dressing

1/3 cup light mayonnaise

1/4 teaspoon dried oregano

1 teaspoon grainy Dijon mustard

Kosher salt and freshly ground pepper to taste

1. Slice croissants in half. Divide turkey slices equally and place on bottom croissant halves. Divide spinach leaves equally over the meat.

2. In a bowl, mix together the mayonnaise, oregano, mustard and salt and pepper to taste. Spread the mixture equally on top side of croissant halves and cover sandwich. Arrange on a tray with olives, pickles and chips if desired. Serve at room temperature.

THAI TURKEY NOODLES WITH PEANUT SAUCE

To avoid the heat of the kitchen post Thanksgiving Day this take on an Asian noodle salad incorporates leftover turkey in a soothing tangle of cooked noodles, sweet bell peppers and scallions.

Serves 6 to 8

For the peanut sauce

2 to 3 cloves garlic

1 to 2 inch knob of peeled, fresh ginger

1/4 cup low-sodium soy sauce

1 1/2 tablespoons brown sugar

2 to 3 tablespoons creamy peanut butter

2 tablespoons roasted sesame seed oil

2 tablespoons lime juice

2 to 3 teaspoons hot chili oil or 1/4 teaspoon dried hot pepper flakes

For the turkey noodles

3/4 pound thin spaghetti or linguini

2 tablespoons peanut or canola oil

1 red bell pepper, seeded and cut into thin strips

1 yellow bell pepper, seeded and cut into thin strips

Put your leftovers to good use!

1 bunch scallions, trimmed and sliced thin on the diagonal

2 cups cooked, diced turkey

1. Coarsely chop the garlic and ginger and put into the work bowl of a food processor fitted with the steel knife. Process to finely chop the garlic and ginger, scraping down the sides of the bowl as necessary. Add the soy and brown sugar and process to mix. Add the peanut butter and process until smooth. With the machine (Cont'd. on next page)

Get Your Quick Fix Prix Fixe

BY AJI JONES

ALMOND in Bridgehampton announces the eighth monthly "Artists & Writers Night" hosted by musical performance artist Cynthia Hopkins on Tuesday, December 3 at 7 p.m. A family style three-course menu created by executive chef Jason Weiner will be served.

The cost is $40 in advance and $45 at the door with a glass of local wine or craft beer, tax and gratuity. Reservations are required. 631-537-5665

BOSTWICK'S CHOWDER HOUSE in East Hampton has announced a new dinner special on Thursdays and Sundays every week, from 4:30 p.m. to close. This special will act like a three-course prix fixe, but the cost is dependent on the price of the entrée the diner chooses. The menu includes any homemade chowders or soups, baked clams, and chicken wings, as well as the choice of any dinner entrées, daily specials or the lobster roll (excludes other sandwiches and rolls). 631-324-1111

FRESH HAMPTONS in Bridgehampton will host a special oyster and wine pairing dinner on Friday, December 6 at 7 p.m. featuring Howard Pickerell's Pride Oysters and Paumanok Vineyards. The six-course dinner costs $95 per person, plus tax and 20% gratuity. Paumanok Wine Club and Fresh Hamptons Rewards members both receive a discounted price of $85 plus tax and 20% gratuity. Reservations are required. The menu includes warm poached oysters with organic leek fondue and oyster and black pepper ice cream. 631-537-4700

THE DRIVER'S SEAT in Southampton has announced its Fall/Winter specials. Every day lunch specials include soup and salad for $9.95 and a beer and burger for $9.95. Other specials include two-for-one entrées on Wednesday nights, a pasta special featuring three courses and a glass of wine for $13.95 on Thursdays, a New York strip steak for $21.95 on Fridays, and a three-course prime rib dinner for

$22.95 on Saturday nights. 631-283-6606

THE BELL & ANCHOR in Sag Harbor offers a prix fixe menu Sunday through Thursday all night, and on Saturdays and Sundays from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. The special includes an appetizer and entrée for $30, or with dessert for $35. The menu includes a choice of homeport chowder, Caesar salad or arugula salad with crumbled goat cheese as well as the fish of the day, moules frites, pan-roasted Duroc pork chop, flat iron steak and "old school" lobster garganelli. 631-725-3400

LITTLE RED in Southampton offers several specials throughout the week. Wednesday is Burger Night where diners can build their own bistro burger platter with pomme frites, lettuce, tomato, Vidalia onion and spicy bread and butter pickles for $10. In addition, entrée specials are offered Monday through Thursday for $19.95, including duck grilled cheese on Monday, chef's choice on Tuesday, veal Milanese on Wednesday and hanger steak frites on Thursday. 631-283-3309 running, pour the sesame seed oil and lime juice through the feed tube in a thin steady stream. Add several drops of chili oil or pepper flakes to taste. If sauce is very thick, add a tablespoon or two of water as necessary. The sauce can be stored in the refrigerator for up to 1 week.

The pies have it!

2. To cook the noodles, bring a large saucepan of salted water to a rapid boil. Put in the noodles and cook for 8 to 10 minutes according to the instructions on the package. Noodles should be tender and not al dente. Drain in a colander and rinse under cold water to stop the cooking. Dry noodles well in a clean kitchen towel. Transfer to a mixing bowl and toss to coat with the oil.

3. Add bell pepper strips, scallions and turkey to the noodles and toss to mix. Add the peanut sauce and mix to thoroughly coat the mixture evenly. Cover the bowl and chill the dish for up to 2 hours before serving.

Keeshan Real Estate Gives Back to Montauk

BY KELLY ANN KRIEGER

Although there are a variety of "Turkey Trots" that take place in towns all over Long Island on Thanksgiving morning, there's something special about Montauk's "Run for Fun" that attracts more and more runners, walkers and families each year. Perhaps it's the location, but more than likely it's the people.

When Nancy and John Keeshan are not actively involved in community events, they operate one of the most well-respected and reputable real estate firms in Montauk. "We take pride in that Keeshan Real Estate is not always about selling—we're about being part of the community," said John. "We're the oldest family owned real estate company in Montauk," continued Nancy.

"I know that 'Run for Fun' will be part of the East Hampton Town Recreation Department and Montauk forever. I look forward to celebrating 50 years of 'Run for Fun' in the near future," shared John.

Amazing surf, great fishing, friendly people, preserved land, outstanding restaurants, luxury hotels and breathtaking sunsets best describe what Montauk is all about. There's really not much more one could ask for—except perhaps perfect weather on Thanksgiving morning. Happy trotting!

For the past 37 years, rain, shine or snow, the Thanksgiving Day Turkey Trot "Run for Fun" race has been an annual tradition in Montauk. Whether you're a devoted running enthusiast or simply enjoy the idea of working up an appetite before the big, festive dinner, it's a great way to start your holiday.

"After talking to a few local friends one day, who also loved running, I decided to organize a run on Thanksgiving morning. There were only six of us the first year and we met in the middle of town and ran to the Montauk Lighthouse and back. It immediately became a tradition and, over time, the race grew bigger. Soon after, Gordan Carberry, Director of East Hampton Town Recreation Department and I decided to make it an official East Hampton Town annual event," shared John Keeshan of Keeshan Real Estate.

Today, the annual event continues to grow and evolve with the support of John Rooney, Superintendent of Recreation for East Hampton Town and the Parks & Recreation Department, John Keeshan and Keeshan Real Estate and the help of many local volunteers and community supporters. Last year, "Run for Fun" had more than 600 participants.

"I've been running since I'm eight years old. I look forward to seeing other runners each year who have been participating as long as I have. The proceeds from the race benefit the East Hampton Town Parks & Recreation Department, and, as of this year, we will also be donating half of the proceeds to our local Montauk food pantry," shared Nancy Keeshan (John's daughter and President of Keeshan Real Estate).

This year the race will be giving out official "Turkey Trot T-shirts" to the first 400 registered participants. They also award turkeys to those who win in each category, something John has been doing since the races inception. "We have a wide cross section of participants, from the elite runners club and local star athletes, to moms with baby strollers. "Run for Fun" has really become a wonderful family day in Montauk," said John.

If you haven't already registered, you can register the day of the race. Registration is $10 on the day of the race at the Montauk Chamber of Commerce from 8 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. (no later). Racers must check-in at the Montauk Circle from 8 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. Starting times are 10 a.m. for the 3 and 6 mile races. 631-324-2417.

Sag Harbor: A Great Little Village

BY KELLY ANN KRIEGER

Sag Harbor is a unique place unsurpassed in historic charm. This quaint seaside gem offers a balance of family fun, luxury amenities and simple relaxation.

Officially founded in 1707, Sag Harbor became one of New York's main Ports of Entry and a world famous whaling town. Fast forward to the 21st century, and Sag Harbor's Main Street continues to flourish with modern-day boutiques, exquisite restaurants and hip art galleries.

Whether you live here full-time or spend the weekend, the offerings are many. From a visit to the old Whaling and Historical Museum with the kids to a star-studded show at Bay Street Theatre and sunset cocktails at B. Smith's, you will not be disappointed. Sag Harbor has attracted and inspired many artists and writers over the years, from John Steinbeck to Billy Joel to Gahan Wilson, and the list goes on.

The plan for Watchcase...

Presently, the development of the historic Bulova Watchcase factory is creating quite the buzz. This once dilapidated facility stands as a shining example of architectural genius. "The Watchcase property is bringing a lot of excitement and interest to the village—it's a very positive addition to Sag Harbor. We have a diverse group of buyers that includes both full-time and seasonal residents. The resort-like amenities are incredible," shared Cee Scott Brown, of The Watchcase Team. Choose from a variety of luxurious lofts, town houses, bungalows and penthouses. Luxury amenities include: doorman, concierge, porters, pool and gym attendants a full-time superintendent, as well as optional additional perks such as housekeeping and car service. Showings are by appointment only during the final construction phase, scheduled for completion in early March 2014. Please contact the Watchcase Team at info@watchcasefactory.com or call 631-725-7200 for additional information.

If you prefer waterfront living, perhaps this next three-bedroom, three-bath home includes everything on your wish list. Located privately off the road facing west on Sag Harbor Cove with lots of decking, a heated waterside Gunite pool and spacious property leading you to a bulk-headed waterfront and deep-water dock, this home is a boater's dream. Control 4 Home Automation works the (Geothermal) heating and cooling, home theater, surround sound, mood lighting, outdoor lighting and window shades. Designed with Modern and environmentally conscious building techniques and top-of-the-line construction and finishes, this home has it all. Asking $4.1 million. For more details, please contact Rylan Jacka, Sotheby's International, 516-702-5707 or email rylan.jacka@sothebyshomes.com.

Pamela Walsh of Town and Country also has a number of amazing properties in Sag Harbor—Check out our next home, a pristine two-bedroom two-bath home with an impressive six acres of property. This magnificent post and beam-style home also offers a full basement, heated pool and fireplace with plenty of room for expansions and...low taxes. Asking $2.85 million. For more information, please contact Pamela Walsh, Town and Country, 516-428-5507 or email pwalsh@1townandcountry.com

Finally, take a tour with Jane Holden of Brown Harris Stevens of our next gem—A contemporary, four-bedroom, 4.5-bath, and waterfront property. Situated on 1.7 acres of land with 607 feet of private waterfront, complete with a dock that can accommodate a boat up to 23 ft. This home offers all the luxuries one could ask for—spacious living room, finished basement with game room, a living room with fireplace, wrap-around deck with two BBQs and an amazing pool overlooking the water. Asking $5.2 million. For more information, please contact Jane E. Holden, Brown Harris Stevens at 631-725-5581 or email her at jeholden@bhshamptons.com.

As you can see, Sag Harbor is one of the East End's long-standing treasures. There's no question why Coastal Living magazine voted Sag Harbor to their top 10 of "America's Happiest Seaside Towns."

FOOD DRIVE | DECEMBER 14TH | 1 - 3 PM

THE RANCHES AT EASTPORT | 56 HAMPTONS COURT DR, EASTPORT | PRICED FROM $549,990

We are having a food drive to help replenish local food pantries. Join us by bringing non-perishable items, supermarket gift cards, toiletries and paper products. There are more families in need right in our own backyard than we realize. Let's work together to help our neighbors.

The Ranches at Eastport offers everything you desire right in the comfort of your own home, most of which are located on magnificent ponds. While this 64-home community is gated for privacy and exclusivity, it is conveniently located near several travel corridors for easy commutation. As only the Ranches can deliver, selections of four model homes are sure to please even the most discerning buyer. All homes are available with beautiful wood trim packages, granite countertops, stainless steel appliances and so much more. The beautiful homes that grace this charming community are ideal for any family. Homeowners can enjoy manicured grounds, a tennis court, full 8-foot basements, two-car side-loading garages, ponds, bocce, a playground, heated pool and clubhouse – all within the desirable Eastport South Manor School District. Great taxes. Monthly fees cover all maintenance. While all of this may sound too good to be true, let us make this your reality. One year free HOA fees.***
